A Magnificent Record.

The annual report of the treasury bu reau of statistics published in another column gives a very flattering account of the foreign commerce of the United States, which has been made possible the provisions of the Dingley tariff bill. This was the measure which the Democrats in Congress said would ruin our foreign commerce. They were like the false prophet of Nebraska, who imagined untold evils and disaster should the Republican party be raised to power. Everyone knows how, under the most strenuous conditions that ever hedged a President, McKinley has guided the destinies of the country; how he raised the flag on foreign seas to be respected by all the nations of the earth. However great has been our triumph of arms our commercial victories have been just as comprehensive

The four great facts brought out in the report mentioned above characterize our foreign commerce as something marvelous. The total commerce of the closing year of the decade and the century surpasses by $319,729,250 that of any preceding year, and for the first in our history exceeds $2,000,000,000 In the second place the exports exceed those of any preceding year, and have been more widely distributed throughout the world than ever before. Thirdly, manufacturers' materials were morfreely imported than ever before and formed a larger share of the total im ports than on any former occasion, and, lastly manufactured articles were more freely exported than ever before formed a larger share of the total exports than any former occasion. In exports every great class of articles showed a larger total than in the preceding year; in imports every class except manufacturers materials showed a smaller percentage of the total than in the preceding year, while manufacturers' materials showed a much larger total and larger percentage of the grand total than in any former year. With this grand evidence of prosperity staring the country in the face what does Mr. Bryan and his free trade, cheap money followers propose to do? Wreck it all, and bring us back to the times of soup houses, industrial and commercia enough to govern another man without that other man's consent." Well, how about Bryan who ruled the Kansas City convention with a dictator's nerve.

Mr. Hewitt's Views.

Mr. Abram S. Hewitt, ex-mayor of New York, and a Democrat of the old school, in an interview states with great clearness why so-called "imper-ialism" cannot be forced to the front as the leading issue of the present cam-paign. The result of the election, he states, whichever way it may go, can have no effect upon our present policy abroad for a considerable time to come. "If Mr. Bryan should be elected to-morrow," he said to the interviewer, "ir would be impossible for the United States to withdraw from the Philippines because of treaty obligations, and it will take three or four years to settle that question, so that the success of the Democratic party could not alter the policy of the government in the east."

This moves the Journal of Commerce to remark that Mr. Bryan "then, would find himself unable to destroy our influence in the orient, and no friend of his has ventured to say that he would or could abandon the Philippines. His election would be merely the expression of a sentiment hostile to the policy the United States has been pursuing which has been characterized by a farsighted comprehension of the greater and more lasting interests of this na-tion. This might allay the apprehensions of the advocates of American in-terests in the Pacific and on its shores; but, on the other hand, it shows that the self-styled anti-imperialists would be impotent to accomplish what they desire even if the government were placed in their hands.

But while the election of Mr. Bryan would not lead immediately to the sacrifice of our coigne of vantage in the orient, or to the realization of the contracted views of a few gentlemen in Boston and a more limited number in some other centres of thought, it would be powerful enough in ruining business. Mr. Hewitt is quite correct in saying that the election of Mr. Bryan would result in widespread calamity and business revulsion, even though the senate were Republican. But a Republican senate is not necessarily a sound money senate. In January, 1891, the senate passed a silver coinage bill, though the Republicans had control of the body. The sound money majority of last March contained two Democrats who will not be senators after March 4 next, and seven Republicans who are bimetalists, or live in states where free colnage sentiment predominates.

The opponents of a progressive national policy cannot acomplish what they desire, but they can accomplish what those of them who live in the east rightly believe would be calamitous, the substitution of the silver for the gold standard. No person can analyze the composition of the United States senate and believe that it will defend the single gold standard after March 4 next if the silverites shall have elected the President and the house of representa-

If an issue is a question whose answer depends upon the result of the election, the only conspicuous issue is silverism. There is no doubt about what the Bryanites will do with the currency if they get the power, while as to the Philipipnes and China Mr. Hewitt well says that they can accomplish nothing for three or four years, and Mr Bryan's friend, ex-Governor Stone, ndmits that he does not know what Mr. Bryan would do if he were President to-day."

"For Customs Purposes."

Every device under the sun has been resorted to to escape the provisions of the Dingley bill that imposes just re-strictions on American tourists who make purchases abroad. The latest dodge is noted by the American Economist, which has discovered that a very effective and a very simple way of de feating the provisions of the Dingley tariff is practiced very generally by shopkeepers abroad who sell goods to American tourists, by issuing an infolce or bill for the merchandise purchased at 50 per cent of the purchase price. Several instances have been brought to its attention, by member of this organization, who have recently returned from abroad, wherein shopkeepers, after selling an article to a traveler for, say 100 frames, or any given price, have in the most barefaced way goods to the purchaser at fifty francs. or at one-half of the purchase price, for 'customs purposes.'

Thus, when the merchandise arrives in New York, or any other port of entry, a receipted bill is presented with the appraisement order or entry, which is in fact one-half of what was paid for the merchandise.

Business Situation.

The situation in Wall street is described by the Financial Chronicle as a marvelous condition of quietude, the manager of a leading bond house say ing that he can neither sell nor buy any

While there has been no change in the official rates of discount by any of the European banks last week, there has been a firm tone for discounts in the open market and this has been especially noticeable at London, where the unofficial rate has advanced beyond the official rate.

Money on call, representing bankers balances, has loaned quite uniformly last week on the stock exchange at 11per cent and at 1% per cent, averaging 1% per cent. There was no variation from these rates during the entire week and the bulk of the business was at 14 per cent. Banks and trust companies quote 11/2 per cent as the minimum, though in a few cases loans have been made at 14 per cent. There continues to be a fair demand for longtime contracts, though the impression seems to prevail that as a rule the larger commission houses are well supplied with money of this character, which they procured sixty days or more ago. There is very little inquiry for loans for short periods, there being a disposition to rely upon the call-loan branch of the market, at least until Bradstreets notes that Important changes in trade and speculation are uation. Among the favorable features calling for notice are the practical as-surance of an immense corn crop by the recent copious rains in the further the continued cheerful reports from the sections which have gatherel and are now marketing a large winter-wheat crop, advices of continued improvement in tone in the northwest, with reports of renewals of earlier-canceled orders for fall goods, fairly satisfactory gains in gross railway earnings, less weakness in prices of the country's leading cereal products, based apparently on renewed buying for export and rather more inquiry for raw wool by manufacturers.

Governor Atkinson is very anxious to send a few thousand West Virginia boys across the Pacific to fight in China over matters that nobody in West Virginia is much concerned in. The governor is a very brave man when it comes to "send-ing" soldiers to fight.—Charleston Gazette.

A Dog Story.

The Skye's favorite place was, as it should be, at his mistress' feet. He was generally quite well behaved, but would have lost his character one day had he been without excuse. The Skye was running in front of his mistress and her husband and suddenly surprised them by flying at a poor girl and holding her prisoner. When they came to her resprisoner. When they came to her rescue, they found her to be a child to whom had been given a pair of the Skye's mistress' shoes. To secure what he deemed to be a thief of his mistress' property, and this the shoes that had so tenderly rubbed him, was clearly his duty, and he did it.—Spectator.

The Solemn Scolding Appealed to Their Risibilities.

"An Irishman of the full blood cannot resist an opportunity for repartee, no matter how solemn the occasion or what his surroundings," said an English clergyman, a visitor in Washington, the other day, when the conversation turned on the funny experiences of clergymen, and the humor that creeps into matters connected with the church, relates the Washington Star. "The only time I ever heard a congregation laugh unrestrainedly during the regular services in a cathedral was back in the eighties, when I was a resident of dear, dirty Dublin. On one Sunday morning the archbishop of Cork preached. He was a splendid man, an Irishman to the backbone, and possessed of as fine a brogue as ever distin-guished a son of Erin. His congregation was made up of the very essence of fashion in Dublin, which in those days was one of the greatest social centers of the world. Notoriously, people were living beyond their means, for the were living beyond their means, for the Income from the landed estates of Ireland had taken a big tumble. But that made no difference, and good dressing went as a matter of course, and was one of the smallest of the extravasances. The archbishop preached on the subject of extravagance, and spoke particularly of over-dressing as a prerequisite to attend church. His sermon was a bitter arraignment of the sin of debt and the wickedness of setting the heart on fashion and dress. He attacked the over-dressed women, and wound up this particular reference this yound up this particular reference this

"There was a pause, until the real significance of the suggestion had percolated through the members of his congregation. Then some one snickered. Every one was picturing to him and herself the real scene that would occur should the archbischop's idea be carried into effect, waile wife looked at hushand, and members of each family nudged one another. The ludferous side was irresistible, and the laugh was side was irresistible, and the laugh was side was irresistible, and the laugh was
